HANES WAS ACQUITTED OF CRIMINAL ASSAULT CHARGE

Was Found Guilty of Simple Assault on Maggie Faucette And Sentenced to Two Years on Roads--Jury Was Out Less Than Fifteen Minutes.

In Guilford Superior court yesterday afternoon at 5:35 o'clock the jury in the case of State vs. John Joyce, alias Caleb Hanes, filed into court and returned a verdict of not guilty of criminal assault, but guilty of simple assault upon the person of Miss Maggie Faucette.

It would have been supposed that Hanes would have been moved at this verdict but his countenance did not change, looking at the jurors with the same sullenness that had been in evidence since he was first placed in the prisoners' room. In fact there appeared to be a deeper set to the sullen look. Hanes was sentenced to two years on the county roads, the court taking advantage of an amendment to section [illegible] of the Revisal, passed at last session of the General Assembly to cover cases of this nature. Heretofore the punishment in cases of simple assault was not exceeding a fine of $50 and imprisonment for thirty days. There is a case against Hanes charging him with carrying concealed weapons and this will likely be taken up later.

The verdict of the jury seemed to meet the expectations of those who had kept up with the case as it was not believed that the evidence was sufficient to justify a conviction on the charge of criminal assault.

The Evidence.

Superior court was yesterday busily engaged throughout the morning in receiving the corroborative testimony of other witnesses with that of the prosecutrix, Miss Maggie Faucette, which was completed during the afternoon session Friday.

One of the most damaging blows given by the State to the case was the proof of the fact that the defendant has been married for several years to a woman in Stokes county, and left her and their child to come here on account of some trouble with a neighbor, during which the defendant assaulted him with a deadly weapon. Counsel for the prosecution based its case on the evident fact that Hanes, which is the name under which he is being tried, knew he was not free to marry the girl and when he lured her away from her home it was with no idea of marriage but with the pre-conceived plan of accomplishing his brutal purpose, as he afterwards succeeded in doing.

The parents of the girl, Mr. and Mrs. J. Fletcher Faucette, of Brown Summit, and her neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Shaw, at whose home the young man had been boarding for two months prior to his arrest; Justice of the Peace Richard Moore, of Brown Summit, and W. F. Mitchell, of Stokes county, were placed upon the witness stand to develop the case of the prosecution. The prisoner offered little defense by the testimony of witnesses, relying wholly upon the pleas of his attorneys, Col. John A. Barringer and S. Glenn Hudson.

As before stated, the discovery of the real identity of the defendant is a point that added greatly to the seriousness of the case against him. Mr. Mitchell furnished the convicting evidence when placed upon the stand. He said that the defendant was well known to him as the two were boyhood friends and had grown to maturity together down in Stokes county. Joyce had married a girl of the same community when 18 years of age, and when forced to leave his home was the father of a son three years old. These facts remained uncontradicted by the counsel of the defendant.

The testimony of the girl's parents in every particular of which they had knowledge coincided exactly with what she told on the stand Friday and published yesterday in The Telegram. They said that their daughter had always borne an irreproachable character and substantiated her statement that she had carried her best clothes with the evident intention of being married when she left the house. They further stated that their daughter had been noticeably weak mentally since the commission of the crime upon her person.

All of the meetings which the girl had with the man were at the home of the Shaws. They were alone together a few times there and the man soon gained her promise to become his wife. By the trust and confidence that she placed in him he was able to influence her away from home under the pretense of marriage in Danville, and to state

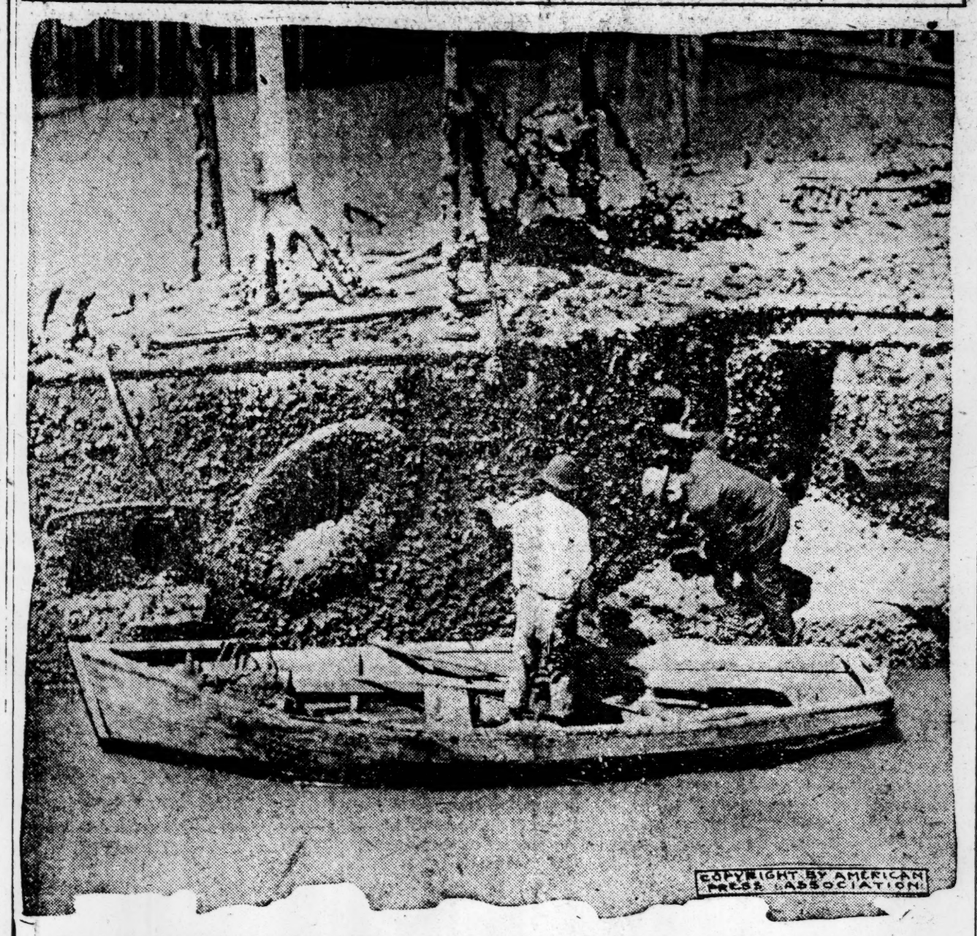
Striking Photograph of the Battleship Maine Showing the Incrusted Wreck Revealed by Pumps.



The wreck of the battleship Maine in Havana harbor has been sufficiently exposed to permit of exploration. The remains of a human foot and the bones of a forearm were found blackened and deeply incrusted with a coral growth. A sword supposed to have belonged to Captain Sigsbee was also found. Those in charge of the work declare that it will be many weeks before a full exploration is possible. In the picture Major Ferguson is seen in a boat examining the hull.

YOUNG

Woman Burned to Death After Saving Her Parents and Seven Children

Special to Telegram.

Durham, June 24.—A report received here late this afternoon from Henderson says that Miss Bertie Pierce, 17 years old, was burned to death and a young man, Bud Johnson, was seriously injured in a fire that destroyed three residences, two stores and a Methodist church.

The report says that Miss Pierce played the part of a heroine, saving the lives of her parents and seven children before she was caught beneath the falling timbers of a burning building.

MEMORY OF LATE SENATOR DANIELS HONORED BY HOUSE

Washington, June 24.—The entire session of the House was given over today to eulogies on the life, character and services of the late Senator John W. Daniels of Virginia. The attendance on the floor and galleries was larger than usual, owing to efforts of Champ Clark and friends. For the last few years eulogies in the House have been very much neglected and it is Mr. Clark's intention to restore to them some of the solemnity and impressiveness. The attendance included many senators and friends of the late senator.

Among those who made speeches were Speaker Clark, former Speaker Cannon and Representatives Brantley, of Georgia; Humphries, of Mississippi; Richardson, of Alabama; Henry, of Texas; Olmstead, of Pennsylvania; McCall, of Massachusetts; Small, of North Carolina; Khn, of California.

UNANIMOUS VOTE REQUIRED TO DIVIDE BASEBALL SEASON

Greenville, S. C., June 24.—Although four of the clubs in the Carolina Association voted for a division of the season President J. H. Wearn ruled today that unless the unanimous vote of the association was secured in favor of the measure he would refuse to break the present season. It was at first understood that the majority of the clubs could carry the proposed change.

Anderson, Spartanburg, Charlotte and Greensboro have announced themselves in favor of the movement. Greenville has voted against it and Winston-Salem has not yet been heard from. Under the ordinary ruling the majority of votes should have carried the motion, but President Wearn probably considered this a special case. All the clubs around the circuit are in practically the same financial condition as last year and the change is not necessary to arouse interest. The Greenville club thinks that a break in the season without having arranged for it previously to opening of the first discussion would hurt the standing of the association among the class "D" leagues.

BOY KILLED IN FREIGHT WRECK NEAR SPENCER

Special to Telegram.

Salisbury, June 24.—A freight wreck occurred on the Western road a few miles from Spencer shortly after noon today, resulting in one death and a serious injury to another.

Sam and Ralph Johnston, sons of T. P. Johnston, of Salisbury, were riding on the train. Ralph Johnston had both legs cut off and received other injuries, living only two hours after the accident. Sam Johnson was seriously injured and is now in the hospital here.

The wreck was caused by a coal car jumping the track, causing eight cars to be piled up. The train crew escaped injury.

MERGER

Of Southern Pacific And Union Pacific Railroads Legal, Says Missouri Court.

Special to Telegram.

St. Louis, June 24.—The merger of the Southern Pacific and Union Pacific Railroads is legalized according to an opinion handed down today by the United States Circuit Court of the eighth district.

Judge Hook filed a dissenting opinion in which he expressed the belief that the government's petition was well founded and should have been granted.

The majority decision was written by Judge Elmer B. Adams, and was mailed to the clerk of the court here. According to this opinion the only question was this: 'Was the Union Pacific Company, extending only from Omaha and Kansas City on the east to Ogden, on the west, a competing line prior to 1901 for transcontinental business with the Southern Pacific Company, whose line extended from New York on the east over the sea to New Orleans and thence by rail to San Francisco and Portland on the west?

"While the Union Pacific was entirely dependent upon the Southern Pacific for its connection westward, the Southern Pacific was not at all dependent upon the Union Pacific for its connection eastward," read the majority opinion.

"Our conclusion," continues the opinion, "is that all the facts of this case, considered in their natural, reasonable and practical aspect and given their appropriate relative signification do not make the Union Pacific a substantial competitor for transcontinental business with the Southern Pacific in or prior to the year 1901.

NEW DEVELOPMENTS IN THE LORIMER BRIBERY CASE

Editor Kohlsatt Tells Committee of Alleged Attempt to Secure Contributions to Lorimer Fund---Lorimerism Defined by Mr. Kohlsatt---Interest Increasing.

Special to Telegram.

Washington, June 24.—At today's sitting of the Lorimer investigating committee Editor Kohlsatt, of the Chicago Record-Herald, told the committee that former President Roosevelt had long known the entire story of how Edward Hines is alleged to have asked Clarence S. Funk, general manager of the International Harvester Company, for a $10,000 contribution to a $100,000 fund which had been used to secure the election of Lorimer by the Illinois legislature. He said that he had told Mr. Roosevelt of this just after the Hamilton Club dinner at Chicago which Mr. Roosevelt had refused to attend because Lorimer was coming. Mr. Kohlsatt had, he said, told Roosevelt the story, including Funk's name, and that Roosevelt had told him that was the reason he had refused to attend the dinner until the invitation of Lorimer was withdrawn. Mr. Kohlsatt further testified that he had written an account of the conversation between himself and Funk but without mentioning Funk's name to Senators LaFollette and Root. This was done at the request of the secretary of the interior department and others.

Mr. Bancroft was recalled as a witness at the opening of today's session of the committee.

Mr. Kohlsatt, editor and proprietor of the Chicago Record-Herald, was the second witness of the day. Under examination by Attorney John H. Marble, Mr. Kohlsaat gave his opinion of Senator Lorimer.

"He is a dual character," declared Mr. Kohlsatt. "In his private life I admire him. He has beautiful children and his home life is ideal. But I have always opposed Lorimerism."

"What is Lorimerism?" asked Senator Kern.

"It is an affiliation and co-operation and cohesion of Democrats and Republicans for party pelf and private pelf."

Mr. Kohlsatt testifed that former President Roosevelt's refusal to attend the Hamilton Club dinner last year because Senator Lorimer was to be present was the result of Mr. Kohlsatt's disclosure to him of the last request for contributions to reimburse those who raised the Lorimer election expenses.

Mr. Kohlsatt further said that Mr. Lorimer once ran for constable as a Democrat, that he resigned from a position in the Chicago water department because of some irregularities in the pay roll; and that Lorimer's candidate for alderman in 1892 against one of the Graywolf Democrats was paid, according to report, $1,000 to withdraw from the race.

STINNETTE GETS TWELVE MONTHS ON THE COUNTY ROADS

Sentence Pronounced in Two Cases And Judgment Continued in Third Case—John Hart Not Caught—True Bills Against Prominent Business Men of City.

Superior court adjourned late last night for the term, Judge Daniels going up after supper to hear argument in a habeas corpus case, both the judge and the solicitor being required to put in a full week. The docket was almost cleared, but few cases that were ready for trial having to be carried over on account of lack of time.

Late yesterday afternoon the cases in which convictions had been secured and no sentence pronounced were called and the defendants sentenced.

Jim Suits, who was convicted on the charge of blockading at the previous term of court in two cases, was fined $50 and costs in one case and judgment was suspended in the other. He was also placed under a $250 bond to appear in court for one year to show good behavior. Judge Daniels took occasion to remind Suits of the evils of associating with liquor in any way and instructed him to become a total abstainer, which he promised to do.

Alex Chaffin, Jr., was sentenced to the roads for one year on the charge of larceny. Alex Chaffin, Sr., was given four months on the charge of receiving stolen goods.

Troy Fitzgerald was sentenced to serve six months in the workhouse on the charge of larceny, the sentence to begin at the expiration of a former sentence.

W. F. Stinnette, who was sentenced to eighteen months by the Municipal court on three charges of retailing, appealing to Superior court, was sent to the roads for six months each in two cases and judgment was suspended in the other case.

Roella Siler was sent to the workhouse for 12 months on the charge of highway robbery.

Frank Pennington was given six months in jail for abandonment, with privilege to be hired out.

John Hart, who on Friday was called out, could not be found so his sentence could be imposed and a capias was ordered to issue and his bond fixed at $1,000 if he was caught. There are two cases charging retailing against Hart.

The grand jury before it was discharged on Thursday returned true bills, charging lottery, against H. J. Latta, Everett King, J. T. Wade, M. W. Sterne, Sykes Drug Company, J. T. Rees, H. Burkheimer and Fariss-Klutz Drug Company. At each of the above places the lottery charged consisted of a scheme whereby those participating paid a certain sum and drew a number. If this was a "lucky" number the person holding the same drew boxes of candy of various sizes. It is understood that the reason no arrests for this offense have been made heretofore was because there was some doubt as to whether the scheme employed really amounted to lottery, those operating contending that it did not.

The matter will be threshed out at the next term of court and meantime the use of the schemes will be discontinued as the above firms state that they have no desire to violate the law and will not do so knowingly.

Detectives Drill Through Wall.

Special to Telegram.

New York, June 24.—Detectives conducting a raid on a gambling den in the theatrical district late this afternoon were forced to drill through an eight inch brick wall to gain entrance to the den. After drilling through the wall it was discovered that there were secret doors leading to the den.

ORPHANS DELIGHT LARGE AUDIENCE AT WHITE OAK

An excellent concert in the lodge rooms of the Odd Fellows at White Oak was enjoyed by a large number of people last evening. The entertainers were 7 young boys and 5 small girls from the orphanage of the Odd Fellows at Goldsboro. Under the direction of John D. Berry and Mrs. Lillian McDonald they presented a concert so creditable and interesting that it was well worthy of performers of more age and experience than the dozen talented young performers who kept their listeners throughout the program in a most attentive and praising mood.

During the faultless rendition of a difficult and varied program, continuous applause for the beautifully executed pieces and for the children themselves, swept through the building in storms. Appearing here at the invitation of the Golden Rod Lodge, of Proximity, and the Anniversary Lodge, of White Oak, the sale of tickets for the concert netted over $200, which is to be used for the benefit of the orphanage.

The party of young people arrived in the city at 12 o'clock and with the two lodges as their hosts they were taken for a long tour of the city on a street car and were in other ways cordially entertained during their stay here.

Senator Lorimer, the property of the lumber trust, is a knotty problem for the Senate to handle.

Those people who take it for granted that the powder trust is going to be exploded will do well to await the noise of the event before definitely forming their opinions.

Perhaps the Greenville Piedmont will explain what are "intiquities." Such things may be common in Greenville, where they have numerous things handed down from the dark ages.

Greenville Piedmont has heard that the people of Winston-Salem are tired of rural life and will start a "back-to-the-city" movement. If they do that the entire population of Winston-Salem will be headed for Greensboro soon.

Baltimore Sun wants to know the difference between vaudeville and coronations. They are alike in that both are mighty serious business for the participants, but a coronation distances vaudeville as a drawing card.

This is the day of the progressive, in business, in politics and in all the avenues of effort in life. Some of the obstructionists still hang on and attempt to clog the wheels of progress, but they can succeed only in being run down and made fit for the scrap heap.

Apparently, the Columbia State thinks Woodrow Wilson and Governor Marshall of Indiana would make an ideal combination for the Democratic ticket for President and Vice President. The thought is a happy one. Governor Marshall would add strength to a ticket headed by Wilson.

Greenville Piedmont has never visited this city and is totally unfamiliar with conditions here. It has heard that cotton is raised in Greensboro, but is unfamiliar with the fact that cotton is raised here in the mills from raw material to the dignity of manufactured products.

Atlanta Journal notes that newspaper editing has become commercialized and that the editor who formerly used a pencil now uses a fountain pen or a typewriter. However, it must be admitted that events move with such rapidity nowadays that even with the assistance of a aypewriter and a typewritist the editor can hardly keep up with the procession.

TAFT PLAYING POLITICS, HELPS DEMOCRATIC PROSPECTS.

Apparently, President Taft is playing politics with the insurgent leaders of his party. That is indicated by some of his recent actions, and by statements emanating from the vicinity of the White House. The latter, however, may be nothing more than the products of the White House political news bureau, which is working overtime and is as unreliable as a politician of the Lorimer brand. If it is a fact, however, that Mr. Taft has expressed a desire to have Senator Borah as his running mate next year, the fact will give color to the statement that the President is playing politics with the insurgent wing of the Republican party. Some of the politically wise of the country are coming to this view, and expressions of opinion like the following from the Baltimore Sun are heard and seen. The Sun says:

"If Mr. Taft has really expressed a desire for Senator Borah, of Idaho, as his running mate in the 1912 campaign, the thing is very significant. Added to the appointments of Fisher as Secretary of the Interior and Stimson as Secretary of War, it makes very plain the intention of the President to split up the insurgent forces as far as he possibly can and to safeguard himself against any rival candidate of the La Follette type. His recent attitude toward measures as well as men is an indication of this.

"Enemies of the President will say that he is playing politics in these recent maneuvers. His friends will say that he is finding himself. Democrats will look complacently on the course of events, because each new move seems destined more certainly to drive the real insurgents, whose numbers are to be counted by the tens of thousands, into the ranks of their party."

THE WAR ON FAKES AND "SURE CURES."

President Taft's special message to Congress calling attention to the necessity for an act to strengthen the Pure Food and Drugs laws of this country, is timely and will meet the approval of all classes of honest citizens. The recent decision of the Supreme Court set at naught the obvious intent of this act and opened the way for the perpetration of limitless frauds in patent medicines and "sure cure" fakes. There is no more prolific source of fraudulent practices than in these lines and laws governing the manufacture and sale of so-called patent medicines are necessary to the safety of the people of the entire country. The importance of laws governing the sale of drugs and foods is patent. President Taft has taken up this question and directed the attention of Congress to the fact that an act covering the ground, and which will actually afford protection to the people of the nation, is needed. It is needed because of the decision of the Supreme Court in a recent hearing, which decision practically nullifies the effect of the Pure Food and Drugs act. An exchange says in discussing this act:

"It is plainly stated in the Pure Food and Drugs law, which was approved by Mr. Roosevelt on June 30, 1906, that all misbranding of patent medicines shall be unlawful, and that "the term 'misbranded' shall apply to all drugs * * * the package or label of which shall bear any statement * * * which shall be false or misleading in any particular.' The court, following its late custom, boldly withdrew the word 'any' from before the word 'particular' and inserted 'certain.' That is to say, it decided that misbranding as to contents was forbidden by the act, but that misbranding as to therapeutic effect was not forbidden.

"The case actually before it was that of a St. Louis patent medicine man who offered for sale a 'sure cure' for cancer—a disease which, as every intelligent person knows, is utterly incurable by medical means and can be dealt with only by the early and complete extirpation of the tumor. This fellow was prosecuted under the act and took his appeal to the Supreme Court. The latter, in deciding for him, laid down the doctrine that in medical matters 'opinons are far apart,' and that, in consequence, no court should be asked to determine, as a matter of fact, the actual therapeutic effect of a given nostrum. Even, said the court, if the claim made for it were palpably preposterous, there could be no legal relief under the act.

"It is interesting to note that Justices Harlan, Day and Hughes dissented from this opinion, which they characterized as opposed to the very aim and purpose of the law. 'If Congress,' said Justice Hughes, 'had intended to restrict the offense to misstatements as to identity, it could easily have said so. But it did not say so.' And as for the difficulty of distinguishing between real specifics and bogus specifics, Justice Hughes swept it away as inconsiderable. Said he:

"'Granting the wide domain of opinion and allowing the broadest range to the conflict of medical views, there still remains a field in which statements as to curative properties are downright falsehoods and in no sense expressions of judgment.'

"For example, in the case of all 'cancer cures,' of whatever sort. Again, in the case of quack specifics for Bright's disease, of whatever sort. Yet again, in the case of all rapid-fire 'consumption cures,' of whatever sort. In the whole world there is not one person, competent to judge and possessing common honesty who maintains that such ridiculous nostrums have the slightest beneficial effect. Why should the government give its imprimatur to bold-faced swindles of that kind? 'Why,' asks Justice Hughes, 'should not worthless stuff, purveyed under false labels as cures, be made contraband of interstate commerce—as well as lottery tickets?'

"That is the question laid before Congress by Mr. Taft."

OLYMPIC'S WELCOME.

World's Greatest Liner Aroused the Enthusiasm of All Who Saw Her—Her Noble Size.

Standing so high out of the water that the throng waiting on the pier could barely see the tops of her four smokestacks as she came alongside, the world's biggest liner, the Olympic, was safely moored with the assistance of 12 tugs at 10 o'clock yesterday morning in her berth Pier 59, North river.

The Olympic left Quarantine at 7:45, and was saluted on her way up the harbor by all kinds of craft, from tiny motorboats to the ferryboats plying on the North river and lower bay. The Cunarder Lusitania swung out into the river at 9 o'clock, just after the Olympic had passed and gave the small army of photographers on the piers a chance for a good picture of the two big ships.

The Lusitania did not salute the latest addition to the Atlantic fleet as she passed either by whistle or dipping the ensign, which was generally done by other liners moored at their piers along the water front. It was thought that in the hurry of getting his ship under way and receiving congratulatioons on his coronation honor of Commander of the Bath, Captain Charles, skipper of the Lusitania, overlooked the Olympic as she passed the Cunard pier.

The view of the liner at Quarantine as she loomed up off Staten Island gave an impression of immense bulk to observers. She looked to be a genuine sea monster. Two daring passengers emerged through the cloud of galley smoke coming up from the depth and waved their hats as they walked around the rim inside the top of the fourth funnel, which is devoted to the carrying off of the foul air exhausted by the electric ventilators and smoke of the kitchens and auxiliaries. A ladder inside led to a small circular platform at the top.

The impression of hugeness given by the external appearance of the Olympic is intensified on entering the interior of the ship, where the amount of space on every deck cannot fail to impress the observer. The saloons, staterooms, bathrooms, swimming pool, smoking rooms, lounges, squash and racquet courts, promenade decks and dining saloon are so large that they resemble the rooms of a large summer hotel more than those of a ship.

The alleyways are so wide that there is no danger of that peculiar jostling that passengers inflict as they pass each other in rough weather on smaller ships. It would not be very difficult for two elephants to walk abreast down the main alleyways on the Olympic. When passengers were asked for an expression of opinion about the accommodations on the liner they referred to her as "just a big hotel in which it was a hard task to imagine one's self afloat, she was so steady." One passenger said it was difficult to remember offhand whether the barber shop was on E deck and the squash court on B deck, or vice versa.

Purser McElroy averred that the daily tour of inspection, which he made at 10:30 a. m., with Captain Smith, Dr. O'Loughlin and Chief Steward Latimer, was fully nine miles. The Captain computed the distance at one-third of that, while the surgeon insisted that it seemed like nine miles.

The stewards all appeared to be good walkers and had ample opportunities for judging distances. The main dining saloon, with seating accommodations for 532 persons, has a width of 92 feet, being the widest part of the ship. To the onlooker standing in the reception room at the foot of the main companion, where hats and coats are checked, it looks like hanging one's hat up in Times Square and walking down to Thirty-fourth street and Broadway to eat.

This is realized by the waiters, to whom an order for another slice of bread or a glass of water means a walk of 300 or 400 feet. Distance made no difference to the service, passengers said. The most agile among the stewards is the night watchman, who has to cover alleyways 550 feet long, with staterooms on either side. While he is going to answer a bell at one end another ring at the other end of the alleyway, and the watchman has to glide swiftly to keep up with his calls so that they do not get ahead of him. It was noticeable yesterday that there were no fat, comfortable-looking stewards on the Olympic.

The decorations on the Olympic are an elaboration of the White Star liners of the Adriatic type, with the addition of carved mahogany panels in the spacious smoking room, bronze reliefs and tapestries in the companion-ways and silken hangings on the lounges, but the most luxurious of them all in its appointments is the a la carte restaurant, on the bridge deck, 60 by 45 feet, decorated in Louis XVI style, paneleed in French walnut and hung with Arbusson tapestries. The deck is covered with a fine rug of Rose de Bari tint.

The big dining saloon, with its double ports, is decorated in the early Jacobian English, after Haddon Hall, in white instead of carved oak. Comfortable arm chairs, upholstered in green leather, are provided for the passengers, instead of the usual small seats, and they are not screwed down to the deck, as the Olympic is considered to be too steady a ship to cavort wildly in any sea.

The principal attraction of her five decks in the first class is the promenade deck, which is 530 feet long and 30 feet wide. There are also two other promenade decks for use of the passengers.

The majority of the first-class staterooms are fitted with brass bedsteads, and the upper berths are on hinges on the Pullman plan. The suites on B and C decks are decorated in the styles of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. The 12 most expensive ones consist of parlor, two bedrooms, two dressing rooms and bath. All the good rooms are fitted with wardrobes with full-length mirrors.

The swimming bath, which is 30 by 14 and 9 feet in depth, was poppular on the voyage. It is free from 6 to 9 a. m., it was said, and can also be used later as a plunge for the Turkish baths, which cost $1.

Passengers said that there was very little vibration from the two reciprocating and the center turbine engines, which develop 46,000 horsepower to drive the ship through the water. The thud of the wing propellers, however, could be plainly felt in the after end of the dining saloon and in the smoking room, it was said. The Olympic will be open for inspection tomorrow and Saturday to the public at a charge of 50 cents, to be given to charities.—New York Times.

THE GIRL WHO SAYS IF

(By MARGARET WATTS DE PEYSTER.)

In a recent breach of promise action it transpired that the defendant had broken off the engagement because the girl had insisted on his promising that when they were married he would go to her church.

He belonged to one religious persuasion, she to another. He had declined to promise, and they had drifted apart in consequence. The plaintiff did not win her case.

There are many girls who seek to dictate to their lover as to the doing of this or that thing, or the not doing of others. Gallantry apart and looking at the matter in a cold, commonsense spirit, any average young man would do well to ponder before leading one of them to the altar.

If a man is really, honestly in love with a girl, he is anxious to get rid of his big faults without being asked, for her sake. And the girl who loyally stands by such a man, helping him with her love and faith is a heroine.

But if he has to be ordered to give up his bad ways, his reformation is unlikely to be lasting. It is more than probable that he will become faster friends with them again after he's a husband.

Extorted promises of any sort are no good at all, and the girl who extorts them and relies on them makes a great mistake, and is lucky if she has not to pay bitterly for it afterwards.

In the great majority of cases the girl who dictates to her lover does so about things she has no real right to object to. "Tom promised to stop smoking when we were married, and now he smokes more than ever," wailed a young bride. Perhaps such conduct was not chivalrous on Tom's part, but it was quite natural.

He and his pipe had been insepparable comppanions for years. It comforted him, it helped him to keep his temper under trying circumstances, it soother him when things went "contrary."

His partiality for the briar was no sin. The girl bullied and wheedled him into promising, and afterwards he relapsed. If she wanted a husband who did not smoke, she ought to have picked out a young man to whom nicotine was hateful, or one who would have been willing to throw away his pipe on his own account as soon as he found she did not like it.

Getting ppromises this way is a dangerous game to play, too. A rather nice girl on the whole lost her lover because she wished him to promise never to go to theatres again. She had no real objections to theaters, but she wished her husband and herself "to have the same sympathies." She was to say what the sympathies were, and he had to conform to them. Nothing jars on the average young man so much as to be made to do or not do a thing on compulsion.

And frankly, the girl who seeks to dictate about things that really don't matter or are unfair or unreasonable, is selfish. And ninety-nine men out of every hundred would prefer a quick-tempered or even sulky wife to a selfish one.

A girl has no right to lay down the law to her lover over such things. It irritates him, and it makes him think seriously about what it going to happen in the future when there will be no going back. When a young man begins to think like that, there is a danger of Cupid growing shy, and gradually, if not abrupptly, taking his small self off.

THE VALUE OF LOYALTY

(By AMANDA MOORE.)

Loyalty is, without doubt, one of the most necessary things to carry us through life; without loyalty nothing that we do can ever bear much fruit. First of all, let us discuss loyalty in the home.

The loyal girl will do her very best to keep the flag of love and happiness always flying top mast high. She will obey and respect the wishes of her parents, will not be behind them in any way. Her word to them will be her bond. Whether fortune smiles or frowns, she will always be the same—loyal, loving and true, ready to stand by and do her best for all whom she loves, and especially those who may be dependent on her for help and assistance.

Her friends will find that, no matter who discusses them and picks them to pieces behind their backs, the loyal girl will come forward and stand up for them. No matter if she knows their many faults and failings, her loyalty and sincerity will prevent her from saying anything except what is good and kind.

Then loyalty is a thing that enters very largely into one's place of work or business. Loyalty to one's employer is absolutely essential if the business ship is to be kept steadily sailing. Some girls consider it smart and up-to-date to continually slang their employer and call him or her mean because they don't get a raise in salary.

The question is—do they deserve it? Perhaps they have skimped their work, turned up late, left early, or encroached on their firm's time in a hundred little ways. Such behavior is truly disloyal. And, be it noted, nothing may be said by the head of the business, bua a great deal may bethought. Loyalty to one's employer is essential if promotion is wanted.

Again we must be loyal to ourselves. It is extremely disloyal to ourselves to speak and act in direct oppposition to what we know is right. If we listen to the still small voice of conscience we shall never take the wrong road, never be disloyal to our better selves.

We have no doubt all heard, some time or other, the following words applied to someone under discussion: "She (or he as the case may be) is so magnificently loyal." That is a fine thing to be heard said about someone one knows. It means so much. But, on the other hand, to be known as "disloyal" means that there is something very despicable about our natures that wants rooting out. What do your friends say about you?

You May Not Have Everything

(By CARA REESE.)

You may not have everything. "And this first summer month that brings the rose," shall take the violets and Quaker ladies away. You may not have the snowballs and the lilacs and the valley lilies as maids in waiting to the fragrant queen of blossoms, the rose. You would better enjoy each passing delight in the floral pageant to the fullest. Even the rose of today is not the same as the rose of yesterday.

You may not have everything. And the camera salesman in exploiting his wares adroitly says, 'snap the landscapes as soon as possible, for next year it will be different." The vines and the branches and all the blooming shrubbery and the hedgerows and vistas of growing things will be varied. It might be an idea to photographs of home verdure or the favorite nooks from the same point of vantage a few successive seasons and at the same stage of development and make note of the changes in structure and effectiveness. The vines on the veranda, the big trees and the lawns and bushes are never the same from year to year. One must enjoy and appreciate continuously to have the full benefit.

But one may not have everything. If one hand be full, then the other is emptied of its wealth. If the senses are centered about one particular absorbing attraction, then there is something else receding or with fainter hold. Only the greedy reach out eagerly for the new while still gripping fast to the old. You may not have the rose and all the dew-kissed blossoms of spring also. The hothouse and forced culture make it possible sometimes to apparently have both, but not after the natural order.

As the seasons whirl around each summer, bringing in its meed of beauty and livinggrace in plpant and flower, so also in other respects is there a variety in that which lives and grows. Some gifts are granted and some are denied. Each dayy is a new day to the growing things. Each summer season brings a new beauty of its own. Those who love the vines and grass and flowers will say day after day, "I never saw the place look so picturesque and pretty as this season." The charm is a new one in shrub and spreading branch. And it is much the same with life, each day is a new one and should bring with it a variety of its own and a special charm which no other day has had.

But it is well to remember that one may not have everything. "This first summer month that brings the rose," shall perhaps take the dainty lily away. Or in a material sense, something agreeable and satisfactory happens but may not be enjoyed to the fullest because of some fault or default in another direction. But the main point is this, face the day fearlessly, learn to catch the glints of sunshine and to see the new beauties, for there is something different day by day and perhaps for your benefit. It is easy to shut the eyes when discouraged and to grope blindly and indolently, but don't do it.

Suburban life is an awful good training for the next world in case you go to thet wrong place.

We Can Help Your Boy

PERHAPS you sit alone at night wondering what will become of him. Maybe he has promised many times that he would stop drinking but he has never been able to keep that pledge. You want to help him but you don't know what to do.

Here's the right way. Send him to the Keeley Institute at Greensboro, N. C. We'll take care of your boy. We'll cure him, for drinking is a disease that will yield to the proper treatment. We'll take away his desire for alcohol by removing his appetite for liquor.

We'll do more than that, for there is something more than mere treatment administered here at Greensboro. There's a personality behind our institution that will help build up a moral character in your son. We'll send him back to you with a brighter eye and a firmer step—with more will power and a better grip on himself. We'll make him the same boy that he was before he started drinking.

There are many reasons why you should send that boy to us—the greatest one is because he is your son and it's your duty to help him. Write us today, in confidence, for our book. It tells all about our Institution and the many cures we have affected.

ONE HUNDRED WESTBROOK BABY PROTECTORS

go on sale at $1.69, instead of $2.75. A saving of $1.06 on every one. By a fortunate purchase of these protectors from the makers we will offer them for the first time Monday at $1.69. Save the babies.

Knowing that the house-fly is in reality the deadly enemy of human beings, it is the solemn duty of mothers to see that their helpless little babies are protected from its disease-laden touch. The "Westbrook" Baby Protector will bring joy, rest, and a sense of safety to thousands of mothers this summer. It is no easy task to sit through the weary hours a baby requires for sleep and brush the flies away. It isn't quite reasonable, either, to cover it from head to foot, depriving it of the full benefit of fresh air.

Its Many Uses.

The uses of the Protector are many. It serves its purpose equally well whether the baby rests on a bed, on a couch, on a blanket or quilt on the floor, in the open air of the porch, under the shade trees, or in summer house.

When baby is taken on an outing, the folded Protector is easily carried, and is instantly ready for use when baby has gone to slumberland and peacefully rests on a soft, thick blanket.

See window display. Let us demonstrate to you the many uses.

DENOMINATIONAL NOTES BY TELEGRAM'S NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT

(By D. V. FRANCIS.)

New York, June 24.—The statistics of the Presbyterian church recently issued afford food for very serious consideration.

In 1910 the members numbered 1,339,000. There are now 1,387,616. This shows a gain of 48,616, which is well in line with the percentage of growth in population. On the other hand, the number of Sabbath-school scholars has decreased by 38,797. The advance movement in foreign missions is evidently telling, and this is the most satisfactory feature of these statistics. In 1910 1,311,413 dollars were subscribed for foreign Missions. This year the sum is $2,485,033. It will be seen that the contributions are not far from being doubled, a fact of the best augury.

The most serious feature of these figures is thme falling off in Sunday school attendance and the church authorities are giving this subject the most thorough attention. It is recognized that the Sunday school is the recruiting ground of the church. I have seen the statement which is doubtless true that not less than 80 per cent of accretions to the church by profession of faith comes direct from the Sunday school. It is therefore of first importance that the Sunday school should grow if the church is to grow.

Doubtless this question of building up the Sunday school will be very thoroughly thrashed out at the National Sunday School Convention at San Francisco.

In religious affairs England is thoroughly abreast of the times. For instance: A powerful plea for the improvement of public morals has been issued in the form of a manifesto by the National Council of Public Morals of Great Britain. It is issued to the people of Great Britain and Scotland and is signed by many distinguished people. The manifesto says: "We the undersigned, desire to express our alarm at the low and degrading views of the racial instinct which are becoming widely circulated at the present time, not only because they offend against the highest ideals of morality and religion, but also because they therefore imperil our very life as a nation. Many causes, old and new, are conducing to the evasion of the great obligations of parenthood and the degradation of the marriage tie evidence of this being found, to some extent, in the becline of the birth rate. Our youth of both sexes is in danger of being corrupted by the circulation of pernicious literature, for which no defence can be offered—a circulation which has today reached an extent and developed a subtle suggestiveness without parallel in the past. This is an evil that can be controlled, and so long as we knowingly permit it to continue, the serious consequences lie at our door.

"The situation is further aggravated by the fact that our systems of education too frequently ignore the sacred and responsib le functions which confront the young on reaching maturity. The tendencies of the age make it imperative that they should be taught to entertain high conceptions of marriage as involving duties to the future of the nation and the race. The great truth must be forced with that of the racial instinct, as this term declares, exists not pprimarily for individual satisfaction, but for the wholesome perpetuation of the human family. Such physiological knowledge should be imparted as shall protect our youth, at any rate to some extent, from those who would seduce their innocence or trade upon their ignorance.

"Certain laws of heredity and development, no less natural or Divine than other laws, which are universally acknowledged, must also receive due recognition and govern our national policy. A high proportion of immorality and inebriety is due to neglect of the incurably defective-minded, whose progeny, lamentably numerous under present conditions, too frequently resemble their parents, and largely re-enforce the ranks of degradation and shame. These cases must receive permanent care apart from the community, that they and posterity may be protected. We believe that only along these lines—by raising the ideals of marriage, by education of parenthood, and by intervening to prevent degeneracy— can we cope with the demoralization which is sapping the foundations of the national well-being. We earnestly commend these suggestions, therefore, to all who love the good cause and desire to maintain through the coming time our national traditions of marriage and the home."

The signatories of the manifesto include the Duke of Fife, the Duke of Argyll, the Archbishop of Dublin, Lord Guthrie, the Bishops of Rochester, and Truro Sir J. E. Gorst, Mr. Alfred Emmott, P. C., M. D., Mr. J. Ramsay, and Professor Sir William Croookes, O. M.

A similar manifesto to the people of the United States would not be ill timed.

A remarkable statement was made at the recent Lutheran Synod at Washington by Rev. R. B. Peery, of Denver, which from former knowledge and reading I am compelled to regard as one of those extravagant and ill-advised exaggerations which are sometimes made by ministers and which do harm rather than good.

"The West is Godless and immoral," said the speaker. "It is a land where there are no ten commandments, and where the thirst for liquor is imbibed in the very atmosphere. When people go West they always drop their religion in the waters of the Mississippi."

This will certainly be improving to the good people of the West as well as those who have traveled through that section of the country. In no section of the country is the church more vital and alive than in the West except it may be in the South.

It would be difficult to imagine Christian bodies further apart in methods at least than the Church of England and the Salvation Army. Hence the following greeting from the King of England, head of the Church of England, to General William Booth, head of the Calvation Army, is significant and gratifying:

"His Majesty, the King, wishes me to assure General Booth and all those who will be present at the conference of social workers from all parts of the world on Thursday next, how heartily he sympathizes with the efforts of the Salvation Army to raise the social and moral conditions of our suffering fellow creatures in all parts of the world, and his Majesty prays that God's blessing may rest on their labors.

"ARTHUR BIGGE."

F. S. Rexford, 615 New York Life Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., says: "I had a severe attack of cold which settled in my back and kidneys and I was in great pain from my trouble. Do You Read the WANT ADS?

Have you found out what interesting news is contained in the want page? There is a reason why want ads are interesting to everybody. Supply and demand create a market. The man who has an article which he has no further use for, with the assistance of a little want ad, can find readily the other man who is looking for just that article. On the other hand the man who is looking for some particular article can find the man who has it and who it perhaps has not occurred that he can sell it, thus by means of the want ad purchasers and sellers for small articles get together.

IMPORTANT DEVELOPMENTS IN WARE-KRAMER CASE EXPECTED

Court Will Have to Decide on Monday on Number of Issues Involving Further Progress of Trial—Other News From Raleigh.

Special to Telegram.

Raleigh, June 24.—When the Federal court reconvenes Monday some important developments are expected in the Ware-Kramer Co. vs. American Tobacco Co. case in that there will be rulings by the judge most probably on a number of issues involving the further progress of the trial. Eespecially interesting will be the ruling of the court as to the relation of W. M. Carter to the suit, the trial having reached a point now where there must be a disposition of the question of evidence of any conspiracy between the American Tobacco Co. and W. M. Carter for the breaking down of the trade of the Ware-Kramer Co. by Carter's getting in with the Ware-Kramer Co. as stockholder and sales manager and mismanaging the Ware-Kramer business that came into his hands. The point is reached where the status of evidence as to W. M. Carter's connection with the case must be settled. That is whether evidence as to him is to be taken as of a conspirator and equally applicable to him and to the American Tobacco Co. There have been some sharp arguments in chambers the past two days on such issues as this and Judge Connor said today that he is giving this phase of the case as involved in the John Stoustine deposition offered yesterday but held up under objections that have to be thrashed out in chambers. Stoustine was holder of $36,000 stock in Ware-Kramer Co. and his deposition is expected to be the most notable in the whole case and, along with the personal testimony of President F. D. Ware, constitute the principal part of the testimony yet to be delivered. Both have to do very vitally with the relation of W. M. Carter and the American Tobacco Co. in the case.

The court reconvenes at 12:30 tomorrow afternoon.

Mr. Chas. U. Harris, representing Mrs. Annie O. Eatman and the state in the effort to extradite from Maryland to this state Madam Hunter on the charge of defrauding Mrs. Eatman and others out of considerable sums of money through claims that she would perform certai nfeats as a fortune teller, has gone to Baltimore to make the fight before Governor of Maryland Monday for the honoring of the requisition that Governor Kitchin has given on the Governor of Maryland for the woman. He carried with him numbers of affidavits from Mrs. Eatman and others to prove the charges that are made against the woman. He was also accompanied by Police Officer Wyatt, who is personally acquainted with Madam Hunter and will identify her and be the agent of the state in bringing her back in the event the requisition is honored.

Owing to complaint that has come to the Corporation Commission that the Southern Express agents are lax and in many instances unfair to the shippers in the matter of applying the tariff of 25 cents for packages weighing 5 pounds and valued at not over $5 when shipped between points in this state, the commission has amended that section of the express schedule to the effect that "A charge exceeding 25 cents shall not be applied on account of the value unless the agent of the express company shall inquire of the consignor as to the value of the package and thus ascertain that the value is held to exceed $5, or unless the consignor shall refuse to give its value."

Two charters were granted today. One to the Winston Printing Co., Winston-Salem, capital $100,000 authorized and $2,000 subscribed by Chas. Ellis, Frank Brumley and W. L. Harper for general job and newspaper printing, lithographing, engraving and similar work. The second is the Acme Hardware Co., Oxford, capital $50,000, by J. M. Bayard and others.

Governor Kitchin returned this morning from Chapel Hill where he delivered last night an address before the summer school in progress there.

Col. Alex J. Feild, private secretary to Governor Kitchin, lives at the fine old Mordecai place way out on Person street where he has practically a whole square on which he and his family enjoy a goodly part of the comforts and pleasures of both country and city life. He and the boys are gardening on a large scale this summer and they have just dug their crop of Irish potatoes, the yield being fifty bushels. They expected to gather one hundred bushels and would have done so but for the severe drought that prevailed early in the season.

While there has been some protest against the appointment of Edward Pennington, cashier of Farmer's Banking & Trust Co. as receiver for the Bank of Tarboro, it is not thought by the authorities that there will be any change. It is pointed out that if there were any possibility for the reorganization of the bank there might be some reason for protesting against the appointment of a competing banker as receiver, but with the bank 'hopelessly busted" as the situation is expressed, the situation resolves itself into securing the best equipped man and the man best situated to wind up its affairs to the best advantage. And in recommending Mr. Pennington the corporation commission had this in view in urging his appointment by Judge Ward. It is learned that 140 out of 250 stockholders in the bank which has been wrecked by the shortages of Cashier Luther Hart, deceased, and Assistan Cashier Hussey, have voted to urge that some other receiver be named.

LONDON GETTING ITS BREATH AFTER THE CORONATION

(By LADY MARY MANWARING.)

London, June 24.—Social London is slowly getting its breath from the strenuous magnificence of the coronation, and while there will be some few further functions as an aftermath of the great pageant, the exodus from the city already has begun and in a short time there will be few people of social consequence left in town.

King George and Queen Mary have surely earned a long rest, but they will not get it for a while for they are now preparing for the royal visits to Wales, for the Investiture of the Prince of Wales, and to Ireland and Scotland. It will be at least a month before they will have a breathing spell.

No man in the Kingdom worked harder than His Majesty over the coronation arrangements. Indeed, the king's energy was a revelation to those about the court who had not been brought into close touch with him before he ascended the throne. Not less than his energy was his business ability.

His navy training stood him in good stead, and Buckingham Palace was under battleship discipline while the preparations were in progress.

His Majesty established a business-like office in his study and had general supervision over everything.

He saw every name, assigned the actual quarters each person was to occupy, decided who was to be in attendance, and how many servants were to be at the visitors' disposal—every detail is attended to and ticked off on lists and plans as he works.

The king had swing baize doors fitted to many of the rooms to expedite matters—no opening or shutting of doors. Buckingham Palace was a hive and the king the busiest bee in it. There was no fussing. Quietly, very quietly and calmly, directing and controlling and keeping every one up to the mark, the king was always cool and quiet, but always decided. And some of those people in position who thought that they were going to have just as comfortable and easy a time as they had under the previous reigns have discovered that they never made a greater mistake in their lives.

The king is the only member of the royal family who can dance a genuine sailor's hornpipe. He learned the steps while a young cadet, and it is told how often he and his brother, the late Duke of Clarence, would get into a cabin together, and while the latter whistled Prince George would step it out. An old man-of-war's man told the writer that for smartness in tying the various sailor's knots with the rope the prince would take a lot of beating. His Majesty is the possessor of a very curious book. In it are pasted all the newspaper cuttings touching any part of his career. The volume is handsomely bound, and has solid gold clasps which bear the king's initials beautifully engraved. This curious book was collected and arranged by one of the Lieutenants on the Thrush, and is highly valued by its owner.

The colleges to be chosen for the Prince of Wale's 'varsity career have not yet been formally announced. He will probably go first to Cambridge. If so, it may be taken for granted that he will become an alumnus of Trinity. Their Majesties are great believers in the social and educational value of public schools and college life, and have no idea of following the "coddling" methods to which some fond parents cling. For this reason it is not intended that the Prince of Wales should be shut up in a separate establishment of his own, to emerge therefrom under the tutelage of a private coach for the purpose of attending university lectures. Instead of this he will join in all the communal life of his college, but may have a pied-a-terre in the vicinity to which to retire for the week ends. After a full year on the Cam, the prince will proceed to the banks of the Isis, his alma mater there being Christ Church, commonly known as the House. The same rule will be observed, and it is quite intended that the heir-apparent shall give himself up in a serious way to good hard reading. That he will be an active patron on the river goes without saying, and there is no reason why he should not take part in the excitement of pulling his college boat, although one will hardly expect him to seek the dignity of a blue.

Society is enjoying the story of the way Lady Lansdowne secured a quiet hearing for her distinguished husband during the recent debate over the Veto bill in the House of Lords. While the noble marquis was speaking, Lord Denman, in the gallery, took the opportunity of explaining the architectural and other beauties of an unreformed second chamber to Mr. Fisher, the Prime Minister of Australia, and his colleague, Mr. Pearce.

Lady Lansdowne rose majectically, paced like a princess to the offenders, uttered a few words of haughty reproof, and the murmur ceased. A Prime Minister looked uneasy and a Governor General—only a small—! blushed.

The case in which a marriage of an uncle and neice was declared null and void by Mr. Justice Deane recalls a historic precedent. Of course, such unions have always been illegal in England. But on the continent of Europe, both among Protestants and Catholics, they are by no means rare, and not merely among royalties. The late Duke of Aesta, the uncle of the king of Italy, married his sister's daughter, the Princess Letitia Bonaparte. Among Protestants the father of the Prince Consort, Duke Earnest of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, married his neice as second wife. In the royal families of Spain and Portugal such marriages have been fairly common. Queen Isabella second and her husband, Don Francisco de Assisi, the grandparents of the king of Spain, were first cousins on both father's and mother's side, the two mothers being neices of their husbands. In the case of the house of Braganza, Queen Mary first married her uncle. Their eldest son married his aunt, his mother's sister. The grandparents of the late Lord Acton were uncle and neice. They were Neapolitan subjects. The union apparently held good in England, for the baronetcy and estates both passed unquestioned to its issue. The Catholic church holds such unions to be contrary to its eccleastical but not to Divine law. Dispensations, therefore, have been given often in countries where the civil law held such marriages legal.

It is more than possible that the American factor will be prominent during the coronation functions at Delhi.

"One of the wealthiest and most energetic of the American duchesses," according to a well-informed "society writer," hopes to see the durbar and to see it in the company of her father.

Apparently the allusion is to the Duchess of Marlborough and William K. Vanderbilt. The duchess frequently has expressed a desire to stand on the historic ridge overlooking the Mogul capital. If she goes there next winter other rich Americans are expected to imitate her courage.

BIG LAND SHOW IN NEW YORK NOVEMBER 3-12

Chamber of Commerce Seeks to Arouse Interest Among Guilford Farmers.

The American Land and Irrigation Exposition will give a land show in New York City at Madison Square Garden, November 3rd to the 12th. This great land show is given to show the people of the world what can be raised in America. Every State in the union will be represented and compete for the prizes offered. The project has ample financial backing and the promoters expect to make it the biggest land show ever held.

A $1,000 cup is offered for the best 100 pounds of wheat grown in the United States in 1911; a $1,000 in gold is offered for the best 100 pounds of hard red wheat, spring or winter, grown on either continent in America in 1911; a $1,000 cup is offered for the best 100 pounds of oats raised in the United States in 1911; a $1,000 cup is offered for the best short staple cotton grown in the United States in 1911; a $1,000 cup is offered for the best exhibit of marketable late potatoes grown in the United States; a $1,500 cup is offered for the best bushel of barley grown in the United States in 1911; a $1,000 cup is offered for the best sugar beets grown in the United States in 1911; $500 in gold is offered for the best 25 boxes of apples, any variety, grown anywhere in the world; a $1,000 cup is offered for the best variety of hops grown in the United States in 1911; a $1,000 cup is offered for the best exhibit of alfalfa.

The Chamber of Commerce, realizing the great opportunity this would be to advertise the agricultural possibilities of Guilford county and the State of North Carolina, has written the manager of the Exposition for details, and it is hoped that the farmers of Guilford will be interested and that Guilford county will be one of the counties in this State to have an exhibit. To win any one of the prizes will be a great advertisement for the successful grower and will also make a strong talking point for the territory in which the grains and fruits are raised.

A fine choir of 200 voices, bands, etc., will furnish music during the entire time the Exposition is held, and the music alone will cost $41,000.

Illustrated lectures will be given by lecturers of national reputation every hour of the day throughout the Exposition, fine motion picture machines and stereopticons being provided for the purpose.

The Chamber of Commerce will be in possession of full details in a few days and if the farmers of Guilford county are interested if they will call at the office of the Chamber of Commerce they can get this information.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

GREENSBORO WON FAST GAME FROM THE MUSICIANS

Spartanburg, S. C., June 24.—Greensboro won the fastest game played on the local diamond this season today, 2 to 0. It was a pretty pitchers' battle and the fielding by both teams was good. A rare triple play was made in the first inning by the visitors. Only three men faced Morrisey in each of the first five innings and five in each of the remaining four. Five men faced Ferrell in each of the first four innings and four in each of the last five. Score by innings:

Greensboro	100 100 000	2	6	2
Spartanburg	000 000 000	0	6	2

Batteries—Morrisey and Stuart; Ferrell and Westlake. Umpire, Leibrich.

ANDERSON WON FROM GREENVILLE BY SCORE OF 6 TO 3

Anderson, S. C., June 24.—Two home runs by the locals and one by the visitors figured conspicuously in the result of the game today which was won by Anderson six to three. A distinct feature was Left Fielder Blackstone's superb catch for Greenville of an Electrician's long drive. Young Jamison pitched well and was given good support. Manager Kelly, of the locals, got a home run and a single out of two legal times at bat. Manager Smith, of the visitors, got a homer and two singles out of four times up. Score by innings:

Anderson	001 013 01x	6	9	3
Greenville	000 001 101	3	10	1

Batteries—Wolfe Hayes and Brannon; Jamison and Kite. Umpire, Nugent.

CHARLOTTE LOSES FINAL GAME OF SERIES TO TWINS

Winston-Salem, June 24.—In a pretty pitching contest Swindell bested Bauswine and the Twins won from Charlotte 3 to 2. The visitors had the lead until the eighth when the score was tied. A double, a sacrifice and a single drove one over in the ninth, and with one man down the Twins were victors. Both pitchers worked well, but the "Wild Man" was a bit off in control as usual. Nothing sensational marked the play, but the game held the interest. Agnew's work at second and that of Cross at third for the visitors was fast sort. O'Halloran accepted his chances at second in good style. The hitting honors were about evenly divided.

Score by innings:

Charlotte	100 010 000	2	6	1
Winston-Salem	000 001 011	3	8	2

Batteries: Bauswine and Malcolmson; Swindell and Dailey.

These charges cover water, firing, lights, board and lodging, but spaces will be reserved at a lower fee for visitors who wish to make their own arrangements.

The great battle between her Majesty and society over dress is, by the way, still raging as fiercely as ever, and I am by no means certain that theQueen has ts yet carried her point.

Her opposition to huge hats was shattered somewhat by the magnificent headgear worn in London by the German Empress, whose ostrich plumes were a dream. Moreover, I am not convinced that the costumiers have yet done all they might in the way of designing a really becoming hat for the queen herself.

OAK RIDGE SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION HELD SATURDAY

Oak Ridge, June 24.—The Oak Ridge Township Sunday School Convention was held at Oak Ridge today, being attended by a number of the Sunday school workers of the township and several visitors. The convention assembled in the Methodist Protestant church and after devotional exercises the address of welcome was made by Township President Charles Case, the response to the address being by J. G. Orrell. Reports from the schools of the township were most encouraging, showing that the work is progressing. Several of the schools reported progress in adopting modern methods, increased attendance and growing interest.

Following the reports of the schools, Rev. J. W. Lowdermilk, pastor of the M. P. church, made an impressive address on "How to Make the Sunday School Most Effective as a Spiritual Force."

At noon a splendid dinner was spread on the green under the towering oaks and the crowd did ample justice to the repast.

At the afternoon session of the convention "The Superintendent" was the subject of a helpful address by Rev. W. F. Kennett. Rev. Shuford Peeler, the Secretary of the County Association, was present and conducted a Round Table on The Teacher.

Among the visitors present were J. T. Fain of Greensboro, who spoke on the organized Sunday school work; and Rev. Dr. Forelines of Westminster, Md., who made a talk on the purpose of the Sunday school.

The nominating committee of the convention, composed of D. W. Whitaker, J. G. Orrell, W. W. Mooney, Miss Essie Angel and Rev. W. F. Kennett, placed in nomination the following for officers of the township association: President, D. E. Stafford; Secretary, Miss Essie Angel; Superintendent of Teacher Training, J. W. Pegram; Executive Committee, W. W. Mooney, R. W. Jones, J. G. Orrell. The report of the committee was adopted. It was decided to hold the next annual convention at the M. E. church, South, at Stokesdale, on a date next year to be named later by the Executive Committee.

DIAMOND DUST

Where They Play Monday.

Greensboro at Anderson.
Greenville at Charlotte.
Spartanburg at Winston.

Well, Charlotte, we are more sorry than you that you lost.

Looks like Winston-Salem will win the first division.

We have a chance at it, but must win practically all and Winston-Salem lose a good deal next week if we come out on top in first division.

Doyle's men will return home Thursday for the opening of the second half of the season. The Musicians will be our guests for the last three days of the week.

The Patriots ought to get two or three of the series with Anderson. Everything depends on what Spartanburg does for Clancy's men at Winston.

The division of the season will help attendance for awhile, but it will take good ball playing all around the circuit to keep it up.

New Books in the Library.

The Carnegie Library announces the receipt of 53 new books which will be ready for circulation Monday. There are 25 books of fiction for adults and 28 books of juvenile fiction.

"Is your husband in favor of the initiative and referendum?"

"Yes," replied the woman in the sunbonnet, "and the recall and local option and everything that'll enable him to go to the polls and miss a day's work."—Washington Star.

HANES ACQUITTED OF CRIMINAL ASSAULT

that they were married on their return on the morning following the night in the woods. Mrs. Shaw first heard the confession of the girl and the case was thus carried to Justice Moore, who knowing that the couple could not have gone to Danville and returned in the time stated, had sworn out a warrant for Hanes, which, however, was never served. This is the summary of the circumstances as known and related by the three parties mentioned.

For the defense several witnesses, some inmates of the county jail, were placed upon the stand to testify to the statement made by the girl to the prisoner in jail on Friday evening that she was yet ready to marry him. Jailer Apple, John Rainey and a man by the name of Britton furnished this evidence.

At the conclusion o fthe taking of the evidence John N. Wilson began the first speech for the prosecution. For over an hour he reviewed the circumstances of the case and presented a strong plea for conviction. This argument concluded the morning session. Col. Barringer in behalf of the prisoner was the first speaker in the afternoon, Solicitor Gattis conducting for the state. Judge Daniels then delivered his charge, the case going to the jury at 5:20. The verdict was returned in less than fifteen minutes after the jury retired.

Meeting For Men Today.

While the meeting for women is being held in Centenary church today at 11 o'clock, the men and boys will have a meeting in the Sunday school room of the church. Laymen will make addresses, followed by general discussions. All men and boys are invited to this meeting.

Last Week A Man Said

"How on earth can I sell a woman a Hoosier Cabinet when she comes in to buy a porch rocker?"

"My dear man," said the office boy, "Easiest thing you know. Keep a Hoosier handy near the door and as she goes out say, 'By the way, here's a machine that will save you two hours every day this hot weather. Then go to it with the demonstration and it sells itself." We are sale agents for this Cabinet in Greensboro and we want to say that it is all in a class by itself.
